Parents' guide to electric scooters (e-scooters)

This information sheet provides guidance on the current laws for e-scooters in the UK.

What are e-scooters?

E-scooters are classed as 'Powered transporters'. This is a term used to cover a variety of personal transport devices which are powered by a motor.

In addition to e-scooters these include: Segways, hoverboards, Go-peds (combustion engine-powered kick-scooters), powered unicycles and U-wheels.

E-scooters have been fitted with rechargeable batteries to make them electrified with speeds ranging from 9mph to 15mph; despite looking much like a standard two-wheeled scooter.

Did you know?

- E-scooters are illegal for use in any public space unless rented as part of a government-approved trial (see overleaf)
- Riding an e-scooter on the road is against the law as per the Road Traffic Act of 1988 and the Highway Act of 1835
- E-scooters are prohibited from being used on cycle tracks, cycle lanes on roads, or other spaces dedicated to pedal cycle use only
- Privately owned e-scooters can only be ridden on private land

HILLINGDON
LONDON

www.hillingdon.gov.uk

What can you expect police to do if they stop anyone riding an e-scooter on a public road?

- The police may seize the e-scooter from you because they are classed as illegal vehicles on public roads
- You will be reported to the courts for driving without any insurance or having the appropriate licence to ride them

Can I be prosecuted for using a powered transporter?

- Any person who uses a powered transporter on a public road or other prohibited space is in breach of the law, committing a criminal offence and can be prosecuted
- If you use an e-scooter illegally, you could face a fine and penalty points on your licence, and the e-scooter could be impounded
- Those who use powered transporters dangerously or under the influence of drink or drugs can also be convicted of offences leading to imprisonment
- Offences related to the standard of driving and speeding also apply

Are e-scooters safe to ride on public roads?

- E-scooters can be very dangerous and are not designed for use on public roads
- They have no suspension meaning even a minor defect in the road could cause the rider to be knocked off the e-scooter
- E-scooters consist of a thin piece of metal between two small tyres with the user being inches from the road surface. This can result in a significant risk of traumatic injury on the road
- E-scooters are not designed to carry more than one person
- E-scooters are small, quiet and quick, meaning they present safety challenges when being ridden on busy public roads
- E-scooters can be dangerous when used in parks or on public footpaths as they can cause significant injury to pedestrians

The future of e-scooters

The government began trials of e-scooters in the UK from 4 July 2020. Trials are for approved rental e-scooters only. Maximum speeds will be set to 15.5mph. Those taking part in the trials will have to have a driving licence and insurance to legally ride rental e-scooters. Geofencing technology will be used to ensure rental e-scooters can only be ridden within a defined area.

The rules for private e-scooters and other powered transporters will not change, and it will still be illegal to ride privately owned scooters on public roads.

Please note: Hillingdon Council is not part of the e-scooter trials.
